Who are we ?

GLADE is a registered educational charity and one of a network of global and development education centres in the UK.

Global Learning is about

- respecting people's varied ways of life around the world
- understanding the factors that affect people's lives and connect us all to each other
- working for a fairer, more sustainable future for everyone.

We have been working with schools, youth and community organisations, local authorities and individuals throughout Somerset since 1993.

GLADE works in partnership with the Department for International Development, OXFAM, Christian Aid, UNICEF and education providers in South West England.

Waste minimisation summer school

“Developing and maintaining a world-class system begins with understanding the world in which we live; the values and cultures of different societies; the ways in which we are increasingly dependent upon one another; and the ways in which we all, as global citizens, can influence and shape the changes in the global economy, environment and society of which we are a part. One cannot truly educate young people in this country without the international dimension being a very significant and real part of their learning experience.”

Charles Clarke November 2004
'Putting the World into World-Class Education'

What does GLADE offer ?
